In a series of convergent empirical essays, Manufacturing Whiteness explores the striking parallels in the social construction of whiteness and gender in colonial depictions of the colonizer/colonized and in contemporary advertising. The past decade has seen a sincere, if belated, willingness among white male scholars to self-critically examine the oppressive social, cultural, and political implications of their whiteness. Building on Jacques Lacan's powerfully original social-psychoanalytic insights into the role of desire in the fetishistic constitution of the subject-in-language, Manufacturing Whiteness offers a sophisticated, yet accessible theoretical method for deconstructing ad-content which enables the reader to trace whiteness, "otherness," and other worldliness to the very constitution of latemodern/postmodern western identity.

When Good Men Are Tempted

Radioguided Surgery

From the late 1800s, African workers migrated to the mineral-rich hinterland areas of Guyana, mined gold, diamonds, and bauxite; diversified the country's economy; and contributed to national development. Utilizing real estate, financial, and death records, as well as oral accounts of the labor migrants along with colonial officials and mining companies' information stored in National Archives in Guyana, Great Britain, and the U.S. Library of Congress, the study situates miners into the historical structure of the country's economic development. It analyzes the workers attraction to mining from agriculture, their concepts of "order and progress," and how they shaped their lives in positive ways rather than becoming mere victims of colonialism. In this contentious plantation society plagued by adversarial relations between the economic elites and the laboring class, in addition to producing the strategically important bauxite for the aviation era of World Wars I & II, for almost a century the workers braved the ecologically hostile and sometimes deadly environments of the gold and diamond fields in the quest for El Dorado in Guyana.

In order to reduce the emissions to an absolute minimum, this book explain as to how these toxins can be regulated. It is no hidden secret that the world is witnessing an oil crisis. But with other alternative sources such as biogas, natural gas and coke based substances; diesel is not the only way forward. The unique characteristics and properties such as combustion and emission of the aforementioned alternatives are explained extensively in this book. The book also goes on to explain how one can look for early signs of wear and tear and malfunctioning components of a diesel engine and its parts.

In the period from the 1920s to 1930s the theory of economic cycles underwent dramatic changes. Due to the research of such famous economists as Nikolay Kondratieff, Joseph Kitchin, Wesley Mitchell, Simon Kuznets, and Joseph Schumpeter the idea of a whole system of economic cycles (with characteristic periods between two and sixty years) was developed. The idea of a system of intertwined economic cycles is nowadays paramount to the school of evolutionary economics and its development promises rather interesting future outcomes. That is why this issue of our 'Kondratieff Waves' Yearbook is devoted to the interconnections between various economic cycles. As to the subtitle of this volume, one should note that many of the contributors refer to the system of cycles and the fact that real economic cycles make up a system, whereas among different types of cycles, the Juglar, Kuznets, and Kondratieff cycles are the most important ones for the present-day economic dynamics. Although Kondratieff himself considered long waves as above all an economic phenomenon, the theory of the long waves became, however, very actively developed in connection with their political and geopolitical aspects. In this Yearbook, the political aspect of Kondratieff waves is the subject of several articles in the second section. The last section of this Yearbook is devoted to the heritage of Kondratieff and other prominent economists. The year 2015 marks the 150th anniversary of the outstanding Russian economist, one of the most prominent researchers of medium-term economic cycles, Mikhail Tugan-Baranovsky, and the volume is concluded with Kondratieff's article about him. Concerning 2015, we should mention another anniversary, namely, 30 years since the death of Simon Kuznets (1901-1985). This edition will be useful for economists, social scientists, as well as for a wide range of those interested in the problems of the past, present, and future of global economy and globalization.
